

Production Profiles from Client Reservoir Engineers

The client reservoir engineer will provide information on what the oil and gas wells are expected to produce initially and throughout the field life. They will advise production rates for oil, gas, and water.

The following table shows a typical example of production profiles