

Heat and Mass Balance

Using the PFD and production profiles, the process engineers will complete heat and mass transfer balances for all streams into and out of the proposed production process. These calculations are used to balance all the mass inputs of the system with the outputs, wherein the net energy change in the same system should be zero (i.e. heat and mass balance).